Possible points for discussion

Home Learning Webinar Possible points for discussion:

- What do we currently offer as ideas for parents for maths learning at home across the different age groups?
- How is this currently received?
- What do we currently provide as regards to resources to support this?
- What could we offer moving forwards? How could we develop this?
- How do we currently introduce maths to parents and at what age?
- Think about our current families and how to support all parents and families to extend learning at home when they may not be confident to do this – idea sharing?

Possible activities

- Provide a small budget or ask your team to create a resource bag to go home with parents to promote a particular area of maths using resources found in the setting
- Think about what you wish to have in place for home learning opportunities and how you can develop this as a team – plan actions
- Deliver a family learning session for parents to give them an opportunity to come into the settings and learn more about early years maths and how to support this in an effort to demystify an anxiety they might have around this.
